

"Volunteering with Canopy has become a great family activity. So many world problems feel beyond our control, but planting and caring for trees makes us a tiny part of the solution to global warming."
 — Dedra Hauser, Canopy Volunteer

PROGRAMS

2009: Growing Our Urban Canopy in a Challenging Environment

In the face of difficult times, we've harnessed our broad network of dedicated friends, volunteers and supporters and succeeded in more than doubling our educational urban forestry activities. In addition to our core work — planting and caring for trees — we've deepened our advocacy and outreach efforts. Staff, board members and volunteers redoubled their efforts to organize more than 90 educational tree projects and activities in Palo Alto and East Palo Alto during 2009, engaging nearly 2,100 community members.

WITH THE COMMUNITY'S ONGOING SUPPORT WE'VE:

Enhanced our core programs: caring for over 2,200 area trees

- Actively pursued planting opportunities in Palo Alto and East Palo Alto neighborhoods: volunteers clocked around 800 planting hours, putting 160 new trees in the ground
- Surveyed the health and growth of close to 2,000 trees: performing extensive tree care on 1,200 of the trees in East Palo Alto (which have achieved a 98% survival rate) and doing light care on over 900 trees in Palo Alto
- Facilitated 300 hours of volunteer tree care activities such as pruning, training, mulching, surveying and weeding.
- Employed youth in Canopy's East Palo Alto Youth Employment program, all of whom played a pivotal role in caring for the urban forest
- Provided community services: The Right Tree in the Right Place Program, Arborists for School Grounds, The Community Arborist List, "Tree Question" Hotline & Inbox, as well as Fiscal Sponsorship and Mentoring for other tree organizations

Reached nearly 2,100 people through our education programs

- Educated residents about tree benefits, tree planting and tree care through workshops, tabling events, e-news and talks
- Responded to some 800 phone and email tree inquiries from residents

Google volunteers show up in force at a Canopy tree care activity.

- Delivered 34 educational activities such as workshops to school children and youth, through partnerships with local schools and after-school programs
- Deployed Canopy's 'Is Your Tree Thirsty?' campaign providing practical tips on conserving water while protecting trees
- Offered monthly Neighborhood Tree Walks, free of charge and attended by over 200 area residents
- Hosted renowned biologist E. O. Wilson at a successful fundraising event that drew more than 900 area students, teachers and residents

Supported the City of Palo Alto with urban forest management

- Advised the City of Palo Alto on tree management policies and advocated for the drafting and the implementation of Palo Alto's Urban Forestry Master Plan
- Consulted with the Palo Alto Unified School District on development of what may become the nation's first school tree policy
- Initiated the development of a sustainable tree planting strategy for the City of Palo Alto anticipating limitations on potable water use for irrigation and the potential impact of global climate change

Snapshot: The Value of Trees

- A healthy tree can absorb 40 pounds of carbon per year
- A lush tree canopy can cool ambient summer temperatures 6 to 8 degrees
- Evergreen trees in rows can capture up to 85% of the particulate air pollution blowing through their branches
- Healthy trees can add up to 15% to residential property values

Accomplishments At A Glance

- 90 educational tree events
- 400 urban forest volunteers
- 800 responses to public inquiries
- 900 attendees at Canopy's E. O. Wilson lecture
- 2,100 residents educated and inspired
- 2,200 tree check-ups

Letter

from the Board Chair and Executive Director.

2009- Healthy Trees, Healthy Communities.

Unlike trees that grow in a natural setting, our urban forest requires monitoring and maintenance, it needs a long-term commitment and a watchful eye. The partnerships Canopy has developed over the years with our volunteers, donors, grantmakers, and city and school staff in both Palo Alto and East Palo Alto has expanded the awareness of the great value trees bring to our community.

As you look over Canopy's Annual Report for 2009 you'll see that more people than ever joined us to plant trees. Without a doubt, it's the most fun part of our work, but it's the education and advocacy work we do with our partners that plants the seed, or the acorn, for a greater appreciation of our mission:

Because we believe trees are a critical element of a livable, sustainable urban environment, Canopy's mission is to educate, inspire, and engage residents, businesses, and government agencies to enhance local urban forests.

"Canopy has a great strength in building relationships—not just with the city and residents of Palo Alto, but also with other urban forestry groups in the state and with the greater community."

A few of Canopy's 1,200 thriving young trees in East Palo Alto.

Fiscal Year 2009 Financial Summary *

Revenues for the year reached $308,880. Expenses were $284,958. Despite an unfavorable fundraising environment for all nonprofits, our successful event with E. O. Wilson allowed us to add close to $24,000 to reserves. The balance sheet remained robust.

This year again we asked a lot from our dedicated volunteers. As always, they responded enthusiastically and made plantings, tree care, and other programs possible. Not accounted for in the financial statements nor in the charts below, the total value of their contribution can be estimated at close to $142,000.

* Canopy's fiscal year matches that of the City of Palo Alto, July 1 to June 30.
